Career Experience

UF (University of Florida) Health Jacksonville Medical Center Arts in Medicine Program Director, 2008-2015

Directed interdisciplinary arts department at 900 bed, Level One Trauma Center and Academic Research hospital. Developed specialized healing arts curriculum, managed a team of visual artists, musicians, and teen volunteers. Responsible for curriculum, supplies, public relations, internal and external education, institutional collaborations, policy input, budget, grant research, data collection, and expansion of potential healing arts opportunities (internal and external).

Curriculum and workshop development was customized for Trauma/ICU (Working with major critical condition patients and families), Oncology, Infusion, Neurology (Working with Stroke, Parkinsons, ALS, and Epilepsy patients) and Psychiatric Units.

Conceived and Implemented several public art exhibitions involving artists, patients, staff, and partner institutions:

Tree of Life Memorial for Organ Donors with Jacksonville University: In partnership with Sculpture Professor at Jacksonville University, created a “design challenge” for Fall 2010 Sculpture 1 class dedicated to commissioned public art project to memorialize specific organ donors at the hospital. Field trips to JU and hospital, interviews with doctors and staff and organ recipients gave context to student ideas. Students created bronze and wood Tree of Life with names of patients etched each year. Families come by and take “rubblings” of their loved ones names annually. This became an icon for the hospital, and a tool for organ donation education and PR drives and won a State of Florida Public Art Award for 2011.

Portraits of Hope: 30' x 3' Photographic Exhibition of Patients who died on the operating table, and survived to share life after trauma incidents. Stories from each were posted below the massive image and exhibition was installed outside Trauma Waiting Room to give hope to those whose loved ones were in dire situations.

Healing Gardens: Collaborated and commissioned Douglas Anderson School for the Arts high school 9th and 10th graders. Resulting 45'x2' painting of gardens was installed in the hospital main lobby.

Patient Exhibitions: Hallways included three installations of specific projects made by patients while in their hospital bed. Clay bowls, birdhouses, and printed wooden disks with symbols gave visual evidence to the power of artmaking with non-artists.

Cummer Museum of Art and Gardens Development Officer and Public Programs Manager, 2006-2008

Developed and implemented all exhibition programming: gallery talks, lectures, symposia, family day events, music and dance performances, film screenings, artist demonstrations, concerts and speaking scripts for introductions. Responsible for programming, contracting and managing all art instructors in museum studio spaces. Developed and wrote scripts, identified and secured speakers. Wrote articles and provided supporting content for Cummer Magazine, Provided content for museum website, newsletters, and social media platforms. Managed programming contracts and budgets. Regularly worked with executive staff, leading donors, corporate executives, board members.

Directed monthly lecture series for retired adults. Performed live and recorded media interviews when needed (television and public radio broadcasts)

Cultivated educational, performing arts, and other cultural and civic partnerships, leveraging shared resources, cross promotion, and creative programming.

BOAT/US Foundation for Boating Safety (Alexandria, VA)

New Technologies Program Manager, 1995-1999

Implemented and launched three national educational programs on boating safety. Developed database-driven web education tool and an education hotline for boating safety, secured nation-wide approval and coordination with US Coast Guard Volunteer Corps. Launched a national life jacket “lending library” for children via nationwide volunteer workforce. Directed a toll-free hotline to educate and serve boating community.

Initiated and maintained nationwide media campaigns in print, TV, radio, internet. Responsible for all facets of program management and releases: design/maintenance, internal database design and training, IT management, grant writing, administrative staff management, volunteer recruitment and retention, volunteer coordination, grant funding, fundraising initiatives, corporate event planning, trade show management, internal and external public speaking and presentations.

Stanley Associates, Inc (Alexandria, VA)

Proposal Manager, 1991-1995

Manager and pre-production editor for software-based government contractor. Supervised creative team from inception through print and media presentations for corporate identity campaigns. Produced quarterly corporate newsletter. Started as graphic artist, promoted to Graphics Manager, then Proposal/Creative Manager. Produced first animated software training program, saving the company thousands in outsourced training. Managed creative staff, worked with all levels of management to ensure quality corporate products.
