ARTIST BIO

Teri Tito grew up on the south side of Chicago. She has always been creative and interested in the aesthetic process. Tito has been painting since 2007 before which time she graced pages of national magazines such as InStyle and Cosmopolitan as an accomplished hairstylist and salon owner. In 2006, Tito co-founded i4design Magazine, an award winning publication, which featured architecture and interior design. As one of the principals of the magazine, Tito acquired an extensive background in design. Tito has been commissioned to create paintings for Interior Designers, Art Consultants, as well as Private Collectors.

One early commission came from the Susan Fredman Design Group and resulted in working sessions for Cooking Light Magazine's Fit House. Tito painted over 30 paintings for the project, which became an integral part of the home. The Fit House was open to the public for 3 months, and was featured in Cooking Light Magazine in 2007. From this promising start, the artist has completed many projects for designers and collectors.

In 2008 Tito spent the summer painting at The International Summer Academy of Fine Art in Salzburg, Austria with the world renown artists the Zhou Brothers as her masters. Tito later spent the winter months in San Miguel de Allende in her art studio, the work she created in San Miguel de Allende was featured in the local arts newspaper "Atención". Tito's work from San Miguel was later selected for a group show in Chicago along with important artists exclusively from Mexico City. The exhibition was titled Arte de la Ciudad and opened at The Zhou B Art Center.

Tito's work "Nevermore" was selected for a permanent installation in 40 Executive suites of the Beaux Arts JW Miami Marriott Hotel. Tito has been featured on Bring it Home, a television design show and her work has been included in many magazines such as Luxe Home and Modern Luxury's CS Interiors.

Recently in 2014 Tito has completed a series of in situ al fresco paintings for Iris Gallery in Aspen, Colorado. Teri Tito currently resides in the North Bay area of California.
