

Sue Fox is a professional mixed media artist living in Chattanooga, TN. She spent the majority of her life growing up in Chicago. She graduated from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago in 2003. Since that time she has lived in Taoyuan, Taiwan, Portland, OR, Nanjing, China, and Chiang Mai, Thailand. She has shown extensively in Chicago, Portland, and throughout the United States. She has been published in Studio Art Magazine, and was one of GenArt Pulse's 2010 "three artists to watch.

Besides working as a visual artist, Sue Fox is a practitioner of Chinese Medicine and possesses her own clinic on Fraser Avenue in Chattanooga, called Hill City Acupuncture and Herbs. Although busy, she attests that both careers seem to fuel each other. As her proficiency in Chinese Medicine evolves, so then does her work at the drawing table, and vice versa.

Sue Fox also works as curator and gallerist with ShapeShifter Gallery a contemporary moving gallery that features quarterly shows throughout Chattanooga.

Although relatively new to this city, she continues to explore and revel in all the natural beauty Chattanooga has to offer. Allowing it to inspire her work everyday in the clinic and in the studio.
